

The purpose of this diagram is to describe the review submission process.

Customers can only reviews places when they have used them. So, before the customer is allowed to save their review, a validation will check if they have used the place whose result will be passed on by the API to the backend. The backend receives the result and if true will process the request which will save the data to the database. The database will confirm the save and returns that result to the user. This review will be displayed on the place page.
